A DELIBERATE INFRINGEMENT

IN the record of postwar international incidents between the Communists and the West, last week's affair at Shataukok would be lucky to rate a mention. This can be said now that it is all over. But the British Government was right to protest. The only pity is that it got so much attention when far more glaring cases—such as the abduction of a number of junks by a Communist tug in Hongkong waters only a few months ago—have been completely ignored.

But the important thing which the authorities recognised in this case was that the Shataukok affair was a deliberate infringement. It was also an important, challenging act. The Chinese knew that whether some people on the Hongkong side of the street had asked for the resurfacing of the road or not, permission from the Hongkong Government was necessary first.

Defiance

AT other points on the border where bridges connect Hongkong and China, repair work is carried out jointly. Why it could not also be done at Shataukok only the Chinese can tell. It would have been the simplest matter for the Chinese to have repaired either only their own half or else informed a village elder of their intentions and asked for joint action. But instead they ignored the existence of the border, asked no one's permission and then pointedly repeated the infringement after being warned by the Hongkong authorities that they were trespassing. This was sheer defiance.

An Inch, A Mile

THE point to remember is that the present regime in China should never be underestimated. Everything they do in Hongkong has an underlying purpose whether it is resurfacing a border road, sending flood relief parcels or a troupe of actors, or stopping the export of chickens and pigs at Christmas New Year.

A policy of watchfulness is essential in the interests of the Colony's future. But it is also most important for Hongkong to assert its sovereignty in the face of this or any other deliberate provocation. Anything less opens the door to doubt about Government's real authority and, more serious still, invites exploitation from across the border. Incidents on the frontiers of India and Burma, two close friends of China's, and of course Macao, make this all too clear. An inch given today may be a mile taken some time in the future. Hongkong should not hesitate to protest at the slightest infringement.

STORMY COMMONS DEBATE ON AFRICAN TERRITORIES
SOCIALISTS FLAY TORY GOVT

Labour Renews Call For Lennox-Boyd's Resignation

London, July 27.

The Labour Party opposition attacked Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservative government today in a Commons debate on Britain's restless African territories. The debate centred on the deaths of 11 Mau Mau prisoners in the Hola detention camp in Kenya last March. A coroner's report said the men were beaten to death and laid the blame on British prison officials.

Labour party spokesmen renewed their demand that Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd resign his post and resurrected charges that the official had rejected Socialist calls for an investigation on alleged ill-treatment of gaoled Africans.

The debate, coupled with the highly charged Devlin report scheduled for discussion tomorrow, are expected to play an important role in the coming general elections—possibly in October.

Gets Away

The Devlin report concerns the seething situation in the Nyasaland Protectorate. Already published, it dismisses government allegations that the Nyasaland African National Congress planned a widespread "massacre" of Europeans earlier this year. About 50 Africans were killed in the series of riots in the protectorate.

Labour MP Dingle Foot opened the Hola camp debate tonight by charging that with the exception of two prison officials in the camp "everybody else who was concerned with this matter gets away Scot-free."

Foot said Lennox-Boyd was not called in any way to account. He conceded that there may be moments of great public danger when a government was justified in assuming emergency powers, but there should be three principles followed:

★ The use of such emergency powers should be confined to periods of real emergency and not continue a moment longer.

★ It should be constantly borne in mind that the detainees were not criminals, and their detention be made as little irksome as possible.

★ When it was decided to intern men without trial ministers in the House of Commons should accept responsibility in precisely the same way as they did in departmental matters.

"None of these principles is being observed today. Detention without trial is becoming an almost permanent feature of our colonial rules in east and central Africa," he said.

Mistakes

Conservative W. J. Peel, veteran of 17 years in the colonial service, said there was no deep laid plot by the Governor of Kenya or British Government to do anything illegal.

But mistakes were made departmentally and incompetence and muddle were shown in certain directions.

Peel set off an uproar when he said: "It is suggested that a minister or ministers in Kenya or even in this country should have resigned. I don't agree that the facts warrant this. I ask members opposite to think back to 1947 and decide whether their conscience is entirely clear with regard to the millions of men, women and children who suffered the most appalling fate when independence came to the Indian subcontinent."—UPI.

West Plan To Hold Summit Talks

Washington, July 27.

A "big thaw" in the cold war appeared today as reports from three world capitals pointed to a possible relaxation of world tension.

★ There were persistent reports in Washington that a Western Big Three summit meeting would be held in August or September as a possible preliminary to a Big Four summit, although White House Press Secretary Mr. James C. Hagerty had no comment to make on the report.

★ The East-West Foreign Ministers' talks in Geneva, scheduled for the past fortnight, took a step forward when the Big Four agreed to exchange working papers on an interim Berlin agreement.

★ In Moscow, Vice-President Richard M. Nixon is considering the possibility of recommending that President Eisenhower invite the Soviet Premier, Mr. Nikita S. Khrushchev, to visit the United States.

One Washington report said that President Eisenhower, Mr. Harold Macmillan, and President Charles de Gaulle would meet in Paris either to prepare the way for a heads of government meeting with the Soviet Union or to discuss the present Foreign Ministers' talks with Soviet Union in Geneva broke down.

The surprise Geneva decision to exchange working papers was announced after a two-hour secret session of the Big Four over tea at the town residence of Mr. Selwyn Lloyd, British Foreign Secretary.

A French spokesman said Russia's agreement to the exchange was "a self-favourable sign."—All Agencies.

Matsu, Quemoy Shelled

Taipei, July 27. Mainland Chinese guns unleashed a 55-minute barrage at Matsu this morning, firing a total of 204 rounds, according to the Chinese government. At the south end, Communist batteries entrenched in Amoy and Lienho fired 16 shells at Quemoy to observe the odd-day firing.—AFP.

No Arrests In Kidnap Case Says Govt

A Government spokesman denied a local report this morning that a suspect has been arrested in connection with the case of the missing oil merchant, Mr. Wong Ying-kau.

Local vernacular reports said that the police had arrested a man in Central District a few days ago, on suspicion of being involved in the kidnapping of the oil merchant.

The suspect, a former supervisor of a now defunct restaurant in Hongkong, was said to have visited Macao many times when rumours were rife that bargaining would take place in Macao.

He was said to have run a ballroom as well as a newspaper in Hongkong and lived "rather like a king."

Debutante's Wedding Postponed

Short Hills, N.J., July 27. The fiancée of Jerome Gay Hart, Princeton University student, who admitted that her story of being kidnapped was a hoax, announced today that their wedding was being postponed because of the publicity which surrounded her disappearance.—UPI.

The 21-year-old girl's fiancée, Stanley N. Galante, 25, of Egg Harbor, N.J., said he and Miss Hart would not be married on August 29 as planned "because there has just been too much hullabaloo and we just want a chance to let this thing quiet down."

Gallant said the publicity surrounding the girl's disappearance was "the only reason" for the postponement.—UPI.

Jumbo With An Alpine Hotfoot

Turin Zoo's Jumbo sets out on the first leg of his attempt to do what no elephant has done for over 2,000 years—retrace the path through the Alps taken by Hannibal with his invading Carthaginian army and its 37 elephants.

Project is the idea of a group of English amateur historians, mainly from Cambridge, who have a new theory about the route the ancient general took, and want to prove it possible. Note: Hannibal's elephants were no ancestors of Jumbo—they were African, he is Indian, and more tractable.—London Express Photo.

Missing Pupil (Fails Three Times In School Certificate) Returns Home

By A CHINA MAIL REPORTER

The student, who left home yesterday after failing in the School Certificate Examination, returned home early this morning, according to the police.

Loung, the student, who lives with his family in Shanghai Street, Kowloon, had two bitter rounds with the examination in previous years.

In the first year, he passed English only and in the second year, he failed all, including English. He made up his mind to pass the examination this year.

Early yesterday afternoon, Loung left home for newspaper office to find out about the results of the examination.

He returned home about 6 p.m., dejected and refused to have supper. In the evening, he handed over to his grandmother his savings over the years, amounting to several hundred dollars and a key to his room, saying, "I'm not coming back tonight."

Later his younger brother discovered a note on the desk, reading, "This life hinges on a fleeting moment."

And on the desk calendar were inscribed the words "Life or Death." When found, the word "Life" had been crossed out.

His brother raised the alarm, and his father reported the matter to the police. The student was missing until shortly after midnight last night, when he returned home safely.

His father said he was disappointed in the student's failure, but he was not angry with him.

He said he had been out of the village of Loxia, was discovered this morning. His head had been cut off with a knife.—UPI.

Shepherd Found Decapitated

Nicosia, July 27. A 37-year-old Greek Cypriot shepherd was found decapitated in a field five miles outside Nicosia today.

Kyriakos Kitis, who went to sleep in the field, because the heat was unbearable at the day village of Loxia, was discovered this morning. His head had been cut off with a knife.—UPI.

Grivas May Lead New Guerilla Fight In Cyprus

Athens, July 27.

General George Grivas, former Eoka terrorist leader in Cyprus, tonight warned he was ready to go back to Cyprus to wage a new guerilla campaign against "the dark forces here and on Cyprus who seek to enslave the island."

"I shall not hesitate to begin the struggle once again," he said, "and to fall if necessary," he added. Addressing Cypriot students and workers after returning from a two-week holiday at a southern fishing village he said:

British Bases

"Several people here and on Cyprus are opposed to granting you freedom and wish to hand over fertile areas of the island to the British to be used as bases," General Grivas said. He did not identify the "several people."

There have been reports on Cyprus of a growing rift between Grivas and Archbishop Makarios, another leader in the island's struggle for independence from the British. His dream, he said, "was and still is to see the Greek flag flying on Cyprus."

Dark Forces

It was his dream "to breathe the air of freedom and no slavery."

"From Greece where I now am I work constantly for Cyprus, which is threatened by dark forces," he told the meeting of cheering Cypriots. Grivas returned to Athens following the signing of the British-Greece-Turkey agreement on Cyprus last February.

The island, now a British colony, becomes an independent republic next February. Britain will cede two enclaves in the south and southeast for use as military bases. Boundaries of the bases have not yet been determined.—Reuters.

Children Murderers Get Life

San Diego, July 27. An Illinois couple were sentenced to life in prison last night for strangling the woman's two small sons.

A jury of six men and six women, who deliberated two days, set a sentence of two life terms in prison without possibility for parole for Mrs. Wanda Brogdon, 33. But they could not agree on a penalty for her lover, Kenneth Archie Merriam, 36.

So Superior Court Judge William P. Mahedy set the same penalty for him. The judge explained he did not see any difference in guilt between the two.

Didn't Care

Both defendants said they didn't care much about the verdict either way. Merriam said, "I thought they did pretty good." He said he was expecting the death penalty, but didn't care because, "I won't live long anyway."

He said he had cancer, and had undergone two operations for it already. Earlier, when Mrs. Brogdon's fate had been decided and Merriam's not, she said: "I think he should get death. I think he should get death for what he done to my kids. He needs death, I think."—UPI.

Plumber Offers Farouk A Job

Turin, July 27.

A plumber who once repaired ex-King Farouk's bathroom has offered the former Egyptian monarch work as his helper, according to the newspaper La Stampa.

La Stampa's "letters to the editor" column published the offer from a "plumber G. Pietro," written from Chailion, France.

"I am happy to know that Farouk is looking for a job," the plumber wrote. "If he wishes to come to my employment, I will teach him to work and earn his bread with the sweat of his brow."

SEEMED BITTER

The writer seemed somewhat bitter. He said he worked for seven hours at Farouk's villa at St. Vincent in Italy renovating Farouk's bathroom.

Most Italian workers dealing directly with the public, from mechanics to plumbers, expect tips, but Pietro wrote that Farouk gave him only a "happy and beautiful smile" and said:

"Here, this is the way a bathroom should be. When I go, they will say of me, a great personage stayed here."—UPI.

LOVE SCENES IN THE NUDE FOR SIMMONS

Hollywood, July 26.

Jean Simmons will play two love scenes in the nude with Kirk Douglas in "Spartacus."

"I hope I don't shock anybody," says the English beauty. "I must say I shocked myself a little in consenting to do it." When she signed for the picture about ancient Rome, the nude scenes were not in the script.

'JOLLY GOOD'

"But as you make a picture, the directors and the principals discuss scenes for their dramatic value. Stanley Kubrick and Kirk both suggested that two scenes would be more effective if played nude."

"I kept giggling, and then I realized what he said." Her first move before going ahead was to consult her husband, Stewart Granger, who said: "I think it's a jolly good idea."

In these scenes she will have her back to the camera.

RHODESIAN CONSTITUTION

African Members
For Advisory Commission Urged

London, July 27.

Lord Attlee, former Labour Prime Minister, said tonight that if African nationalist leaders were excluded from the advisory commission proposed to prepare the way for a 1960 review of the Rhodesian Federation Constitution, it would fail.

He was speaking in a House of Lords debate in which Labour peers had urged that leaders of the African National Congress, now detained, should be on the commission.

Lord Attlee said: "In Africa, as in India, there are people whom we have put in prison. If we send out a commission of any kind and exclude the nationalist leaders we shall fail."

Lord Home, Secretary for Commonwealth Relations, said the Federal Prime Minister, Sir Roy Welensky, had made it clear that British Government protection would continue so long as the people of the territories wanted it and so long as the British Government considered it necessary.

Lord Home added: "If these fears (of the end of British protection) can be removed by an impartial commission, the whole relationship between Africans and Europeans might be changed and the whole outlook of Nyasaland on the federal scene might be changed."

The debate ended without a vote.—Reuter.

Destruction
Of World
By Accident
Fear

Stockholm, July 27.

The United States professor and Nobel Prize-winner, Linus Pauling, said here today he was uneasy over the fact the world might be destroyed not by the atomic bombs being set loose by evil intention, but by accident.

Professor Pauling, 1954 Nobel Prize-winner for chemistry, was speaking as guest of honour at the fourteenth international Congress of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, which opened in Stockholm today.

"Nations must give up restrictive nationalism and behave morally in order to survive. Our common enemy is war, and to defeat it we must unite," he said.

Communist countries are not represented in the league, but observers are attending this conference from Soviet Russia, Poland and East Germany.—Reuter.

Mrs Nixon
And Mrs K
Agree

Leningrad, July 27.

Mrs Pat Nixon said today that no matter how much their husbands argue in public, she and Mrs Nina Khrushchev agreed they should "preserve the peace" of the world.

In the midst of her whirlwind tour of Leningrad, Mrs Nixon paused to tell the lady journalists with her what it was like to sit in on world-moulding political discussions between the Vice-President and top Soviet leaders.

She listened to Nixon and Khrushchev talk politics for some six hours yesterday at Khrushchev's country home.

The Vice-President's wife did not go into the content of the discussions among the men. Instead she told from a woman's personal viewpoint of how the ladies sat in silence under a canopy after lunch while their menfolk talked over affairs of the world.

"After the discussion ended, we women agreed we had to preserve the peace for our children whom we loved so much," Mrs Nixon said.—UPI.

No Progress
In Dispute

Manila, July 27.

Filipino Foreign Secretary, Feliciano Serrano, and United States Ambassador, Charles Bohlen, today failed to make any progress towards liquidating the dispute between their two countries over the deaths of 23 Filipinos at the U.S. Clark Field Air base.

The two men met today and afterwards a short communiqué issued by the Filipino Foreign Office merely stated that Bohlen and Serrano had "discussed the possibility of finding a mutually satisfactory solution" to the air-base affair and had not set new dates for their talks.—AFP.

BANK BANDITS'
BUSY

London, July 27.

BANDITS had a busy weekend in London raiding banks, stealing a safe containing cash and travellers' cheques from the American Express Company in Mayfair and robbing an ice cream factory of about £4,300.

Victims were still trying to assess losses which they thought might be around £47,000.

Safecrackers working leisurely through the weekend burnt open the strong room of the Midland Bank at Stepney in the East End and took about £20,000.

They left behind them a collection of empty milk bottles, tea cups, and blow torch fuel containers.

Less Lucky

At another Midlands Bank at Finsbury, North London, they knocked a hole through a brick wall to get in and take £2,000.

But they were less lucky at the third at Ilford, where after hours of toil they found themselves in the wrong strong room. They left empty-handed.

The American Express Company's missing safe was believed to contain nearly £20,000 in cash and travellers' cheques.

Ely Cathedral near Cambridge was also broken into and some cash and church plate stolen.—Reuter and AFP.

COLOURED
WHITE

London, July 27.

A white woman answered her bail in court here today on charges of thefts of money from her employers accompanied by a coloured woman prison officer.

Reporters were told afterwards that this was possibly the first time in Britain that any white prisoner had appeared in an English court in the custody of a coloured warder or wardress.

A Prison Officers' Association spokesman said that a coloured woman prisoner officer had been employed at Holloway Prison, a London gaol for women, for at least 12 months.

"As far as I know she is the only coloured woman prison officer in the country, though there are several coloured women nurses in the prison service. There are also two or three coloured men officers in the prison service."—Reuter.

Runaway Coaches

Edinburgh, July 27.

Twenty-one empty railway coaches stationary in a siding on the Edinburgh outskirts ran away today smashing into buffers and a protesting wall of sleepers.

No shunting operations were going on at the time and puzzled railway officials thought vibrations from a passing train might have set the coaches in motion.

Coaches were damaged but no one was injured.—China Mail Special.

Long Line
Fashions
For Autumn

Paris, July 27.

The Paris dressmakers, who know their female psychology, handed women a long, long line for autumn today on the second day of the Paris fashions showing.

Jean Patou's line is the perfection of it. It makes a woman look slim, sophisticated and reed-like from the accentuated shoulder line to the long hip-line, which lapses straight to the top of the calf.

Gres and Goma showed skirts that were slightly longer than Patou's earlier today.

But all agreed on the long-skirted silhouette, which with Patou was carried out from the forward tilt of the hat to the pointed toes of the shoes.

Patou's coats derived their fullness from accentuated shoulders. These were either rounded or slightly squared by the use of a back panel which dropped them to the hips and which had the sleeves set under it.

FUR
The reversible coat was back in force at Patou's and the other collections. One of Patou's most elegant numbers was a black wool coat cuffed, coloured and lined mink.

Fur, both of the short and long-haired variety, was used in profusion—sometimes as collars for suits and ensembles.

Patou's suits had long almost-to-the-hip length jackets. Some were belted. Some had pockets to accentuate the hips. Some had fly front fastenings which continued down part of the front of the skirt.

Tailored dresses had slightly biased backs and loosely cut fronts to give the impression of a jacket.—UPI.

Bigger Bang

London, July 27.

The Sunday Express commented by cartoon on the public activities of Vice-President Richard M. Nixon and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The cartoon showed the two men standing on a bomb shaped to represent the earth, each holding a fuse and a lighted match. The caption: "Hail I can blow us all to bits with a bigger bang than you can blow us all to bits with."—UPI.

SINGAPORE GIVING UP
ADVERTISING

Singapore, July 27.

There will be less selling of Singapore to the world through advertising from now on owing to the economy campaign of the new Singapore Government.

It is understood that all American publicity campaigns undertaken by the Singapore Department of Tourism will be suspended immediately. Advertising in Australia, which is already firmly committed, will be continued until the end of the year. These steps are being taken following the decision of the Singapore Government to close down the tourist office headed by an American, Robert Howlett. He has been given three months notice to terminate his service and close down his department. Grandiose plans were announced in the past few months to sell Singapore to the world through large-scale advertising in order to attract tourists.

The new socialist government elected on May 30, however, scrapped all the plans immediately and whatever publicity there is from now will be handled by the Government's Ministry for Culture.—UPI.

"NO HANDS" DRIVING TEACHER SUSPENDED FOR SIX MONTHS

Mr. Grantham (left) meets Mr. Martin (right) at Kai Tak this morning. Standing next to Mr. Grantham is his wife, and Mrs. Martin is seen next to her husband.—China Mail Photo.

A woman instructor who had been suspended for 12 months for driving with both hands off the wheel had her suspension reduced to six months by the Appeals Court this morning.

Leung Sing-nor, 28, was suspended by Mr. A. L. Lenthall, Kowloon Magistrate, on June 18.

The Chief Justice, Sir Michael Hogan, this morning ordered that a $750 fine which had also been imposed should stand.

Appearing for Leung, Mr. Lawrence Leong (instructed by P. L. Lam & Co.) told Sir Michael that his client had pleaded guilty to the charge.

Her First

Mr. Leong said it was her first offence. He asked that the disqualification order be cancelled because it was her means of livelihood.

The Magistrate, she frankly admitted what she had done and threw herself on the mercy of the Court," he added.

Replying, Mr. D. Rea, Crown Counsel, said Leung was seen driving with both hands off the steering wheel, and she also drove through traffic lights.

Mr. Rea said the Magistrate apparently came to the conclusion that it was a serious offence and merited a serious penalty.

Too Severe

Giving his decision, the Chief Justice said the offence was undoubtedly serious, but that the punishment inflicted was unnecessarily severe, having regard to all the circumstances.

His Lordship stressed to the appellant that this was an offence that should not be repeated.

Leave Turned Into A Stealing Spree

An inmate of the Cape Collinson Training Centre who was granted work and leave but went on a stealing spree instead of returning, was ordered back to the centre by the Central Magistrate Mr. T. L. Yang.

Sub-Inspector T. Y. Yip said that Yip Chai-kei, 19, was granted leave on May 30 and was supposed to return the next day.

On Monday he was arrested in Clear Water Bay Road. He admitted stealing a fountain pen and a pair of spectacles from his father's house in Chi Ma Village, Ngau Tau Kok, and had pawned them.

He later admitted that on June 4 he snatched $50.00 from his brother Yip Chai-chung on the staircase of No. 39 Hing Man Street, Shaikwan.

He also told the police that he had obtained a job as an apprentice in the Hong Sang Iron Factory in Ngau Tau Kok.

On July 10 he was given $50 by the proprietor of the factory to buy iron but instead he absconded with the money.

Restitution

Wu Kam, 30, an employee of the Hung Sang poultry store in Jardine's Bazaar, who pleaded guilty on Friday to embezzling $587.20 from his employer could make only $500 restitution at Central Magistrate this morning.

Mr. T. L. Yang, the Magistrate, remanded defendant for one more day to make full restitution.

Fined For Spitting

Twenty-six persons who pleaded guilty to spitting in a public place were each fined $20 by Mr. T. L. Yang at Central Magistrate this morning.

The Magistrate told them that they were liable to a maximum fine of $500.

MR ALLPORT

It was $10,000 a nod for Mr. K. B. Allport at yesterday's auction of the Grenville House site, which has been occupied by the Royal Navy since the liberation.

Bidding against the director of Harriman Realty Co. Ltd. was Mr. Dhun Ruttonjee and a Chinese syndicate of three who, as the figure fell past the $1,000,000 mark, worked furiously with a pencil and pad.

But each time they reached a decision and raised the bid, Mr. Allport nonchalantly

THE MAN WITH THE $10,000 NOD

ly topped them with another $10,000 nod. When the price was at $1,350,000, the syndicate made their last bid for the land just before Mr. K. A. Watson's hammer fell for the third and last time.

Round Figure

Mr. Watson called for a nice round figure to end the bidding. Mr. Allport bid another $15,000, to make the property his at $1,375,000.

Afterwards I asked Mr. Allport about a report that he was acting on behalf of Wheelock Marden and Pan American World Airways to buy the site for a luxury hotel.

But he denied this, and said he was buying for a client whose identity he would not disclose.

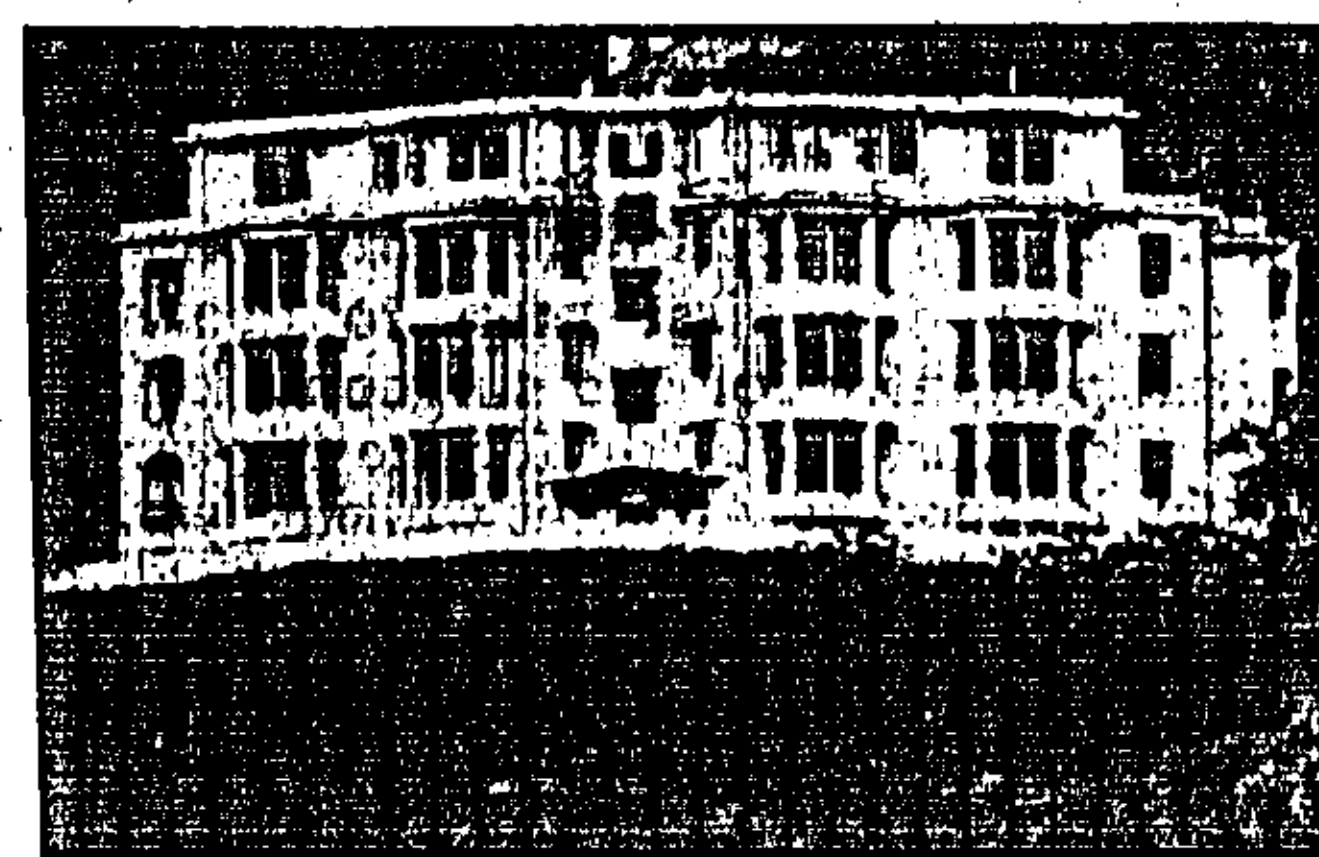

The auction itself was an unusual coincidence for the auctioneer, Mr. Ken Watson. Immediately upon his release from prisoner-of-war camp in Hongkong in 1945, he was billeted in Grenville House.

Mr. Watson had served with the Naval Volunteer Reserve, and with two other men, the late Mr. D. E. Handmarsh, and an Australian, Mr. G. C. Dudley, they were quartered in Grenville House for three days until they could find other lodgings.

"The house was completely undamaged when we moved in. There had been no looting, and the overall condition of the place was good," said Mr. Watson.

On August 30, 1945, the house was handed over to the Royal Navy, and since then they have used it as an officers' mess.

Before the war, Grenville House was used by Japanese members of the staff of a leading Japanese shipping company.

Unloading Of Centurion Tanks Begins

The unloading of the first consignment of Centurion tanks for the Army in Hongkong from the ss Benary began at Kowloon Docks this morning. There are 25 in the first shipment. They are for the First

Royal Tank Regiment in the New Territories to replace the Comet tanks now being sold as scrap. More Centurions for Hongkong will arrive in the future. The tank, weighing 50 tons, is heavier and more modern than the Comet. It is 23 feet 6 inches long and 11 feet 3 inches high to the top of the turret.

It has one 20-pounder gun. A large number of senior officers from Land Forces, technicians and soldiers from REME, IAOC, and personnel from the First Royal Tank Regiment were present at the dock this morning.

Soldiers tested the engine of each Centurion immediately it was unloaded.

An Army spokesman said that the First Royal Tank Regiment was the last in the British Army to have the Comets.

However, the regiment stationed in Hongkong was fully trained and ready to take the Centurions. Training would be carried out in open country in the New Territories, he said.

The unloading of the tanks is expected to be completed by noon tomorrow. They will be delivered in three train loads to Fanling.

The first train load will leave tomorrow.

From Fanling, the tanks will be driven to the Suk Hong headquarters of the tank regiment.

Motor Cruiser: $1,500 Offered

The 17-foot motor cruiser, Tolo Queen, was withdrawn from public auction this morning, when the reserve price set by the owner was not reached.

Bidding started at $500 and the highest bid was $1,500.

Auction of the Tolo Queen at Messrs. Lamart Bros had previously been postponed on two occasions.

It was learned that the owners, H. A. Jhaveri and Co. Ltd., will now try to sell the cruiser privately.

Decision Reserved In The Case Of The Jammed Telescope

The Chief Justice, Sir Michael Hogan, in the Appeals Court today reserved his decision on an appeal by a Urban Services Department coolie convicted of stealing 20 cents from a telescope machine.

Ng Man-chiu, 23, had been fined $200, with the alternative of one month, by Mr. I. T. Morris at Central Magistrate on June 8.

Ng was found guilty of stealing the money from the machine situated outside the upper Peak Tram terminus.

Mr. Peter Mo, representing the appellant, said Ng maintained that he had put in 20 cents in the machine, to look through the telescope, but found it was jammed.

He therefore used a toothpick to retrieve the coins, said Mr. Mo.

Mr. Mo said the Magistrate had apparently ignored a vital piece of evidence, given by a Mr. Somerville, licensee of the telescope, regarding the jamming of some of these telescopes.

Sir Michael said he would give his decision at 9.45 a.m. on Friday.

False Report

A 33-year-old unemployed man, Liu Sing-fan, alias Liu Sung, alias Wong Tim, who made a false report to the Criminal Investigation Department alleging that three persons armed with two revolvers and one hand-grenade were planning to rob the Union Construction Company in Kowloon was fined $300 or six weeks by Mr. T. L. Yang at Central Magistrate this morning.

Detective Sub-Inspector Charles Lee informed the Magistrate that defendant came to the CID office on July 25 and made the report.

Enquiries revealed two of the three persons alleged were unknown. The other was defendant's enemy.

Doctor faces 92nd operation for CANCER

RADIATION BURNS

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT

New York.

IN a Chicago hospital recently, one of the martyrs of medical science—the first man to use X-rays in treating disease—waited patiently for the surgeon's knife.

Time passed quickly for the 83-year-old white-haired man. Though in pain, he knew how to wait without fear.

Dr Emil Grubbe was facing his 92nd operation on the cancerous burns eating his body. He has suffered the dreadful effects of excessive X-ray radiation for 64 years.

"I can tell you about radiation from the beginning," he says in a surprisingly clear and strong voice.

"I was the first one burnt and I am the only one living from that period." That Dr Grubbe (pronounced Groobay) is alive at all is amazing.

Only six months after his first exposure to X-rays in 1895, Dr Grubbe had his first operation for skin cancer burns on his left hand.

Since then his left arm has been amputated below the elbow and parts of his nose, lips, jaw and cheeks have been removed.

Now, the index and little fingers of his right hand have been so intensely attacked by the skin cancer that they, too, must be removed.

Dr John Orndorff, of Chicago, son of the surgeon who amputated Dr Grubbe's left arm in 1924, will perform the 92nd operation.

The pioneer whose work, even before he became a doctor, contributed to saving or prolonging millions of lives, had his last operation only last November.

Dr Grubbe had graduated from a university with a degree in chemistry and physics, and was working for a bank as an assayer and refiner of rare metals when he discovered platinum in Idaho in 1895.

"In those days," he says, "the only use for platinum was in vacuum tubes, so I had to go into the vacuum tube business."

The bank had paid him off with 25 thousand dollars worth of platinum.

Late in 1895 Dr Grubbe read that a German physicist, Wilhelm Roentgen, had a few months before seen a shadow outline of the bones in his hand.

Roentgen had found that by putting his hand between a vacuum tube charged with electricity and some barium-platinum-cyanide crystals, his hand's bone structure became visible.

Dr Grubbe soon found that in the manufacture of his own vacuum tubes the best way to test the product was to place his hand between the tube and the crystal screen.

If there was a sufficient vacuum in the tube, the bones of his hand would appear black and sharply etched.

He used his left hand and he soon noticed that it swelled up painfully and became flushed.

At that time he was also a physics instructor and medical student at a Chicago medical college.

"Too late"

He consulted the medical faculty about his swollen hand.

The physicians could not recommend any treatment, but one of them, Dr J. E. Gilman, thought that X-rays should be used. That was the beginning of his radiation burns.

If they produced such strong effects on healthy tissue, he reasoned, they should certainly be useful in burning away cancerous growths.

A doctor told them of a woman patient who had had two operations for cancer of the breast and suggested that she be exposed to radiation treatment.

"On January 20, 1896," says Dr Grubbe, "I began the first of 10 treatments of 10 minutes each."

"The pain was gone."

Because he was not a doctor at the time, Dr Grubbe's early work was not reported.

But doctors still referred as many as 75 patients a day to him.

He graduated from medical college in 1898, became the world's first professor of roentgenology and opened the first hospital X-ray department.

"It wasn't until 1937 that the medical society accepted roentgenology as a therapeutic agent," says Dr Grubbe.

"All who practised it before then were called fakirs."

But by then the cancer damage to Grubbe already was far advanced.

"I realised almost immediately after the first tests that I had been burnt by X-rays," he said.

"From that day on I protected myself from the rays."

"But it was too late."

Today, Dr Grubbe lives alone in a small lakeside apartment in a Chicago suburb.

Friends bring him a hot meal every day.

Apart from that help, he could use the stub of his left arm and the two fingers and thumb of his right hand to care for himself—washing, clothes, dressing, opening doors.

A leading Sydney X-ray specialist said that skin cancer had formed on the parts of Dr Grubbe's body which had been diseased by excessive exposures to radiation.

"The cancer, which is a tumorous growth, grew up on the diseased tissues," he said.

"Skin cancer can form on any kind of burn, but it is most likely to form on radiation burns."

"Dr Grubbe was unfortunate because he simply didn't know what he was doing."

"Nowadays, the effects of radiation are known, and great care is taken to prevent excessive exposure."

"Dr Grubbe would not have felt or seen anything happening to his body while it was absorbing the rays."

"Daddy says what's wrong with sending another 20,000 U.S. planes over here from France—you couldn't make more blasted row than you make already."

On the stand today a beautiful, green-eyed, socialite film star Spotlight on Linda

WHERE were you born?
In Tampico, an oil town of Mexico.
WERE you an only child?

No. I have three brothers and one sister. My brothers are in real estate and business in Mexico and my sister, Ariadna Weller (our family name), is an actress.

DID you have a happy childhood?

Very happy. When you are a child everything is given to you. When you grow up, you have to take care of yourself.

WHEN did you first meet Tyrone Power?

The very first time we met was in 1945 but only very briefly. He invited a writer friend of his along to his home and I came too. He was then still married to Annabella, the French film actress, so nothing came of that meeting.

The second time was again briefly a year later. Our real meeting was in 1947, in November. You could say it was love at third sight.

HOW long did the marriage last?

We married in 1949 and parted in 1955.

HOW many children have you?

Two daughters. Romina who will be eight in October and Taryn who will be six toward the end of September. Both girls possess a mixture of Tyrone's eyes, my mouth and our features.

WHERE are they now?

At school in Mexico. They stay with my mother there.

DO you still love Tyrone?

You cannot live with a man and have children by him without always cherishing some love for him in your heart. I never wanted to part. Ty felt that he was not up to matrimony and family life. He wanted his freedom. Yet even when we parted he said, "I'll always love you Linda, you know that."

I warned him that he would not be free for long and that another woman would soon get him. But he just laughed this off and right up to two months before he married again, for the last time, he told me that he would never get married.

WHAT is the happiest memory of your marriage?

Giving birth to a child. You see, I had three children before my two little girls were born. All were miscarriages and were born dead.

YOU were in a similar position to Marilyn Monroe in that case. How did you overcome this terrible problem?

A gynaecologist advised me to have a series of hormone injections. I had these after Tyrone's and my third attempt to have a child. But I was not given enough injections and the child died again. But while I was carrying Romina, I was made to stay in bed for a good three-quarters of the time of pregnancy and given overdoses of hormone injections. The result was a happy, healthy child. I am sure that Marilyn Monroe should have the same treatment and everything would be all right.

WOULD you like to get married again?

Any human being would like to have a partner.

IS there any prospect of marriage?

No, none.

JOHN IZBICKI asked the questions
IN PARIS

Pet Hates

AS a Catholic you would still consider yourself married to Tyrone Power. You would consider yourself his true widow?

Yes, that is correct. You see, the other girls Tyrone married he married outside the Church, so none of those marriages was recognised by the Church. We were married in the Church.

There was a little scandal in California because we did not wait very long after he had obtained his divorce before getting married. But I feel that the rules of the Church are more important than the waiting laws of California.

WHAT are your pet hates?

Noise. Not the sort of noises you get at a party because that is just one big noise. I mean individual noises like the banging of a door when you are trying to rest in your room or a car honking in the street.

HOW are you progressing with your autobiography "The Way I Live"?

Very nicely, thank you. It should be finished by the end of this year.

WILL the book be sensational enough to make people "sit up and take notice"?

No. It will be more human than sensational. It will tell of the problems a girl experiences when she goes to Hollywood for a career, how it feels to be in the Unlabeled and meet all sorts of people in one's travels.

DO you play any sports?

I used to. Before I had the children, I used to play a lot of tennis and go horse riding. Now I can only swim. I don't like fishing or hunting because I don't like killing animals. If I ever had to be in a kitchen and kill a chicken, I'd turn vegetarian immediately.

WHAT are your plans?

I'm off to the Berlin Film Festival, then to Rome to get myself a new wardrobe. I prefer Italian clothes to the French. There they can give you a whole new wardrobe in a week while in Paris one has to wait three weeks just for a fitting. Then I'm going back to Hollywood to discuss films and continue writing my book.

DO you make lots of money out of your films?

I make far more money from my real estate business. Film stars rarely make very much money. They are artists, not business people.

HOW old are you, Linda?

Every girl must have one little secret. That's mine.

BRITISH ATHLETICS STRIKES ROCK BOTTOM

Only 10 Competitors Reach Olympic Qualifying Standards In AAA Meeting

By DEREK JOHN

London.

This year Britain has flopped in international soccer, cricket, golf, lawn tennis, table-tennis and boxing. And I forecast that its next big flop will be in athletics. On the season's agenda are athletics matches against West Germany, Poland, Russia and Finland. I expect Britain to lose the lot.

For British athletics has struck rock bottom. Derek Johnson, once the world's fastest miler, has floundered like a stump squab. Gone too are such world-famous personalities as Barnister, Chataway, Wooderson, Peters and Holden.

The sad story of the decline and fall of British athletics was driven home at this month's AAA Championships when only 10 competitors reached the Olympic qualifying standards in the finals. And remember that these standards are laid down as qualifying marks only for a country's second and third string entries. Britain is struggling to achieve them with her top men.

Now look at some of the AAA Championships results.

S. African Rugby Team To Tour Britain

London, July 27. The South African Rugby Union team, the Springboks, will arrive at Southampton on October 4 next year. It was announced here today. The team will play 30 matches in Great Britain including the Tests against England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales.—A.P.

The mile was won in 4 mins 11.2 secs—a reasonable time in the slowest pre-war days, deplorable in this decade of miracle miling.

Similarly, the winners of the 120 yards hurdles, 440 yards hurdles, pole vault, high jump and long jump all failed to reach an Olympic qualifying standard. And these athletes included Brian Hewson, European 1,500-metre champion, and Peter Radford, Britain's fastest sprinter.

Stan Vickers won a gold medal at the European Championships last year. But he was beaten in the two-mile walk by nearly half a minute. And the winner, new star Ken Matthews, fell a long way short of the British record—13 mins 11.4 sec set up in 1904.

Only A Handful

Today, only a handful of British athletes look capable of reaching an Olympic final, let alone winning a medal. One P.C. 385 Stan Eldon, the fleet-footed constable who achieved the Olympic standard in the six miles and three miles.

Arthur Rowe, the mighty smithy who won the European shot-put title, is another Olympic class man. But I do not see him as a potential medalist.

Then there is Bruce Tulloch, a newcomer who ran barefooted to a shock three-mile victory in the AAA meeting. His time of 13 mins 31.2 secs was well inside the Olympic standard.

Even Worse

And the British girls? Their standard has been even lower this season. Only good news here is that June Paul and Heather Young are planning a comeback, restoring that glorious quartet which smashed the world sprint relay record at the British Empire Games last year.

What can be done to revive British athletics? The greatest need is money—money for more professional coaches (there are only five in the country), more tracks (there is not one indoor track), and better training facilities.

This year, belatedly, British amateur athletics will begin a football pool. But the profit—perhaps £100,000 a year—will fall far short of their needs and meanwhile the number of paying spectators at athletic meetings is steadily dropping.

What British athletics really needs, but will probably never get, is State aid. Without it, Britain looks like losing a great deal of prestige at future international meetings and festivals.

World Yachting Championships

The "Flying Dutchman" class world yachting championships began last Monday week at Whitstable Bay, Kent, South England and ended on Saturday. The individual championship title went to the Italian yachtsman, Mario Caplo, sailing the yacht Alderbaran II. Adrian Jardine of Britain, in "Pandora" was runner-up. Italy came out first in the team placings followed by Britain, West Germany and Holland.

Wallaby Trainer Explains Flop: 'Pent-Up Tension'

London.

Let us proudly acknowledge Alcide, the absolute champion. His mighty run for Ascot's £23,000 confirms that he is a great son of a great sire, Alycidon. But what happened to the French crack Wallaby II, who finished virtually last?

After the race I called trainer Percy Carter at Chertilly and asked him point blank: "What is wrong?"

A fair question. Only a month ago we saw Wallaby II put up a magnificent performance to win the Gold Cup.

By
JOHN RICKMAN

None of that fire was evident last Saturday week, not a spark.

Percy Carter's answer came instantly: "There's nothing wrong with Wallaby. He just didn't run at all. Apart from what you saw him do against Alcide, you saw him do against Alcide. He can do to Balbo." [Balbo was third in the race.]

Too Cool

"It was a hot day and several of the horses were sweating. Wallaby remained absolutely cool—too cool, in fact. I wish he could have sweated out his bottled-up excitement. But he didn't and he never runs a good race when he is like that."

"If Palmer had given him a hiding, it might have livened him up, but we don't like doing it that way."

"Wallaby has to be settled down at the tail of the field. Palmer did that all right, but when he wanted the horse to go on, well, Wallaby just didn't want to know."

Captain Boyd-Rochford had Alcide turned out splendidly, and Harry Carr brought him with a powerful run to win. Fortunately for British interests there were no flies on Alcide.

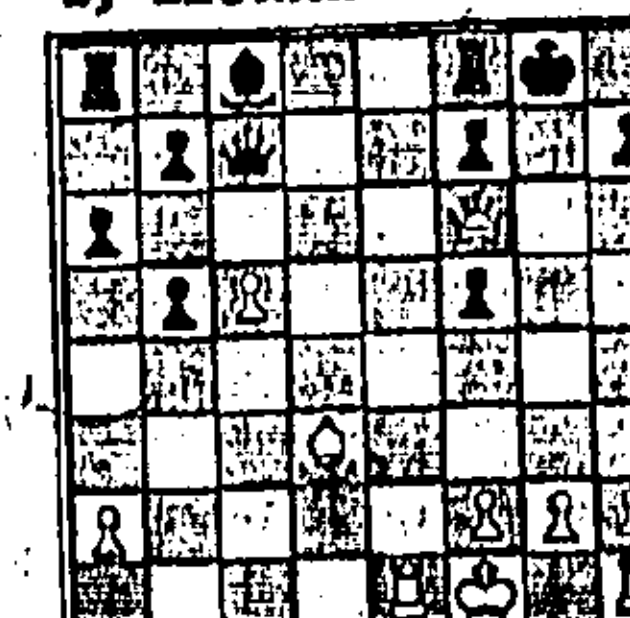

Why flies? The explanation is that flies have probably been Alcide's enemy. He cannot bear one to touch him. If a fly settles on him, he tries to kick it. Hence the sprained muscles which have cost him more than one race.

Alcide, winner also of the 1958 St Leger, has run his last race. Sir Humphrey de Trafford has decided to syndicate him as a stallion for life.

With the Derby victory of Parthia, Sir Humphrey's horses have won him £26,474 this season. He has never had such a haul in his 40 years as an owner.

U.S. Baseball Review YANKEES PRACTICALLY OUT OF AMERICAN LEAGUE PENNANT RACE

Braves Back In Running For NL Title

New York, July 27.

As we near the home stretch of the 1959 baseball race, it begins to look as if the Yankees, perennial rulers of the Major League, are ready to be counted out of the American League pennant race.

They just don't seem to have it. Injuries to Tony Kubek and Bill Skowron and the illness of Gim McDougald have added to the woes of manager Casey Stengel.

George Weiss, Yankee General Manager, went out to Detroit to see if he could do anything to bolster his ailing heroes, but aside from obtaining pitcher Gary Blaylock from the St Louis Cardinals and asking that Skowron be put on the disabled list, making room for an additional player on the roster, he hasn't helped much.

Chicago, the National League seems headed for a knock-down drag-out "tussle" to the very end.

Braves' Bad Spell

As the teams prepared to enter the home-stretch San Francisco held on to a 1½ game advantage over the surprising Los Angeles Dodgers, but the rampaging Milwaukee Braves gave notice over the weekend that they will be in contention.

The Braves hit a bad spell after the break for the All-Star series and lost eight of nine games, but they've swung back into the winning column, sweeping their series with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Great mound performances by Warren Spahn, Lew Burdette, Bob Buhl, Don McMahon and left-hander Juan Pizarro, pulled the 1958 National League champions to within two games of the top.

They have looked very impressive in coming out of their slump and in spite of the two-game advantage that San Francisco enjoys at the present writing, the boys from the beer capital of America are again the betting favorites.—A.P.

Third Major Baseball League To Be Formed

New York, July 27.

A third major baseball league, to be known as the Continental League, is to be formed, it was announced today by Mr. William Shea, chairman of the New York baseball committee set up by Mayor Robert Wagner.

The league, which would have a minimum of eight clubs, is expected to begin operations in 1961. Founding cities would be New York, Houston, Toronto, Minneapolis, St Paul and Denver.—Reuter.

Co-Favourites

Meanwhile, as the Yankees slid back to fourth place, nine games out of first place, Chicago and Cleveland were installed as co-favorites among the betting fraternity. The Indians are in first place with a half-game advantage over the White Sox. Baltimore, eight and a half games off the lead, is in third place.

With the American League pennant race apparently settling down to a struggle between Cleveland and

Textile Orders 'For Many Months'

At the annual meeting of the Textile Corporation of Hongkong Ltd. this morning, a dividend of 65 cents per share was approved and declared.

The Chairman said that the year had been another very successful period, the spinning and weaving departments being fully booked up for many months ahead.

The transfer of $500,000 to the general reserve was approved, the sum of $410,144 to be carried forward.

The report and accounts for the year were adopted. Mr. Fung Ping-tan and Mr. L. P. Kwok were re-elected Directors.

WHAT HAS HONGKONG INVENTED?

A Challenging Question Answered by Prof. Kirby

"Is there a single invention, or even innovation, so far, of purely indigenous or local origin, by which the name of Hongkong will go down in human history?" Prof. E. S. Kirby asked the members of the Hongkong Rotary Club.

Then, answering his own question, he said, "All are introduced from elsewhere—even Hongkong food. Though some have perhaps been carried further—for example the split skirt."

Prof. Kirby was speaking to Rotarians at their weekly luncheon in the Paramount, on his "Ideas for Hongkong."

The University of Hongkong economist said it was the task of all our educational and informational agencies to make fully and thoroughly known all the technical, organisational and social developments in the world today, and then to generate and stimulate fresh thinking on how best to apply and utilise these points in the case of Hongkong.

"It is the task of business to organise, to apply all this to practical situations and specific undertakings, for which it alone can supply the ultimate judgment and the real practical knowledge."

"It is the task of public policy—I think all are agreed, in Hongkong—mainly to keep the way clear for all this, to promote and facilitate if necessary, to inform as widely as possible, but to leave the dynamic role to ordinary enterprise."

Illustrating his idea he read a short rhyme he had composed.

Initiative not enough.
Exploitation had its day;
Organise to do our stuff,
Educate to show the way,
Information make complete;
Innovate so we compete;
With invention forge ahead,
Put more butter on our bread.

"I would like to see Hongkong regarded more and more, in other countries, not merely as a place for incidental shopping, but as a place to be essential to know and keep in touch with."

"There are two directions in which Hongkong may be able to give to the rest of the world something it very much wants, in the way of non-material exports, and draw in exchange very much useful information from the technical and 'know-how' points of view, besides gaining very much in contacts and goodwill."

"One is that Hongkong is the best source, from the world's point of view, of good information and close assessment of what is happening in modern China."

"This involves also the tremendous and generally still rather underestimated—importance of Free China in Taiwan and the millions of Overseas Chinese, the other China, on which the issue equally depends."

Three Chinas
"Someone has remarked that much has been heard of a 'Two Chinas' policy, but it may be necessary also to consider an attitude of Three Chinas—Communist China, Free China, and Hongkong."

"The other consideration, which actually embraces also the foregoing one—is that Hongkong is now in a more general sense the real meeting place of East and West, in the business, political, cultural, technological and social senses, as perhaps no other place is in this day and age."

"Greatly increased numbers of foreign academic visitors are coming to us from now on, to stay a much longer average time, ever more solidly developing their interest in contemporary problems. Which interest they will expect us to serve; offering in exchange that we may learn much from them in the way of modern ideas and modern uses; which in turn are things we shall very much need for the education of our ever more numerous rising generation, and for solving the ever more complex problems of Hongkong's livelihood."

From the Files 25 years AGO

TEN films were banned in Hongkong last year. Although the titles were not revealed, here are some guiding principles which censors observe: A number of films are banned on political grounds, and one of the chief themes in this connection is that which has a bearing on Sino-Japanese relations. Great care is also exercised in handling films about the civil war in China.

Gangster films also call for keen censorship. During the past few years there have been an extraordinary number of this type of film. The Hongkong censors place a ban mainly on those pictures dealing entirely with scenes of violence and crime which are calculated to have a detrimental effect on the good order and conduct of the community.

Other films would be banned where the main theme is in the opinion of the censors, obscene, lewd or objectionable.

Extract from the SCMP's 25 Years Ago column: Sydney, June 28—The arrival of the first Chinese Consul-General to Australia has coincided with some plain speaking on the part of wealthy Chinese residents here. Australians are told that unless they modify what are held to be the 'insulting features' of the White Australia policy, China will boycott Australian goods.

"Abigail" reports that towards the end of August, Mr Douglas James Smyth Crozier and Miss Ann Hobbs will marry. Mr Crozier, who resides at 2A Armad Buildings, Kowloon, is a teacher at King's College while Miss Hobbs who hails from Muswell Hill, London, is en route to the Colony by the P and O liner, Mantua.

Introduction of the Electromaton, traffic control in Hongkong may result in drastic regulations to regulate pedestrians as well as vehicular traffic.

The Electromaton, an automatic intersection traffic control which has proved extremely successful in England, will be introduced to Hongkong before the end of next month.

The Queen's Theatre advertisement spoke of 'the story of a movie star's skyrocketing career written in living drama. James Cagney, as the kid from Hell's Kitchen who smashed his way to the heights of Hollywood, (was now appearing) in 'Lady Killer'."

Man On Murder Charge Asked For Return Of Ring

A woman factory worker, testifying this morning at a murder trial, said the accused had asked the woman he is charged with murdering for the return of a ring—"or we are not properly divorced."

The accused, Chau Shui-wan, 25, a factory worker, is alleged to have murdered Yin Mei-chu in the Lee Tai Textile factory on the morning of April 22.

The case is being heard before Mr Justice A. D. Scholes at the Criminal Session, and a jury of three men and four women.

The woman, Ma Lin-mul, testified that on the morning of April 22 she was working with other workers including Yin Mei-chu in the "blowing room" of the factory.

Hands On Hips

The accused entered the room and looked at all the workers for a while. Then he left. Five minutes later he re-entered the room and approached Yin.

She heard the accused asking her for the return of a ring. The woman stood up and with her hands on her hips said something in reply.

The accused then left the room. In answer to a question by Mr G. R. Smith, Crown Counsel, witness said both were angry at the time. She said the accused went into the room again shortly

Jamboree Reports 'Far From Truth'

Mr Hugh De Rham, Leader of the Swiss Boy Scouts, who headed a delegation of Swiss scouts attending the World Jamboree in The Philippines, said today newspaper reports of adverse conditions at the camp were "grossly exaggerated and far from the truth."

He left later this morning by Swissair for Zurich.

Mr De Rham, a second cousin of Lady Bastyan, wife of the Commander British Forces, stayed overnight at Flagstaff House, as house guest.

He was seen off this morning at Kai Tak by Captain Bernard Cousins, ADC to Sir Edric Bastyan.

The tall, bronzed, athletic Scout Chief said the World Jamboree had been "most impressive" and was "well worth while from all aspects."

Their Philippine hosts had been most friendly and cordial and the event had been very successful.

Letters To The Editor

Over-speeding

Sir,—Is it not possible for the Traffic Department to curb some of the exuberance of our Ben Hur-Jehus who bowl along merrily at a modest 45 mph in the Central District as if they were having an appointment with Doom? Each doubtless imagines himself a Stirling Moss on the race tracks at Le Mans, completely disregarding the safety of pedestrians who are sent in an undignified kangaroo-like leap from the iron monster whose death-dealing potentiality is no less fatal than the H-Bomb.

Yesterday morning as people emerged from the sub-way to cross Cross Road along the zebra crossing they were unceremoniously scattered about by a thoughtless speedster driving a large monstrosity of a car that dangerously proclaimed the affluence of its owner in no uncertain manner, in spite of the fact that before crossing the road they made sure that no on-coming traffic was within sight, and yet hardly they had reached the middle of the road when this demonic Jehu sped along without slackening speed. It was difficult to note the number of the car, as whilst its body was quite large, its license-plate was so very small that one could hardly see the microscopical figures clearly.

Hongkong is a small place of around 30 sq. miles, and at 30 mph one can circle it with ease and yet your mentally unbalanced Ben Hur must insist on keeping up a steady 45 mph to send his blood tingling with exhilaration, heedless of the danger caused to others. It may be mentioned that the incident occurred at 7.35 a.m. when the Traffic Pointman was not yet on duty so that anyone could commit mayhem with impunity.

Pleads For Young Thief

London, July 27. Lord Boothby, a former Member of Parliament and television personality, today pleaded for leniency for a 17-year-old youth who had stolen a watch from him.

Lord Boothby told the magistrate in a London court that the accused, Robert John Bevan, 17, an unemployed waiter, was "one of several hundred people I have tried to help and only the second one to let me down."

Bevan, a former constituent of Lord Boothby's, pleaded guilty to stealing the watch, its gold chain and a large gold coin attached, worth £50.—Reuter.

Castro's Men Pay A Quick Call

Five members of Fidel Castro's revolutionary army force headed—landed at Kai Tak this morning, en route to Djakarta. (See picture above). This is a "goodwill mission" inspired by Fidel Castro and led by Maj. Ernesto Guevara, his deputy Chief of the Revolutionary Army in Cuba.

Mr Jose Liada, a journalist of the liberation newspaper Bohemia travelling with the party said the goodwill mission started from Havana and had visited Egypt, India, Burma and Japan. They are now visiting Indonesia, Ceylon, Pakistan and Iraq, before returning to Havana.

Mr Liada went on to say that Fidel Castro needed to test the feeling of the electorate, by resigning his post. His "re-election" had been almost unanimous and now there was solidarity within the revolutionary government of his country. Swissair passengers on the flight through Hongkong said the members of the mission were "charming" and had chatted freely with other passengers.
